Christian DÖGL
uma information technology GmbH
CEO & founder

Christian Dögl, born in 1969, studied architecture at the University of Applied Arts in Vienna. He founded "virtual real estate" in 1994, the predecessor of today's uma information technology GmbH.

In 1999, uma organized the first scope conference on "information vs. meaning" under the patronage of the city of Vienna. In 2002, uma was awarded the Austrian National Award for Innovation in Multimedia and e-Business for VICO (virtual interactive collaboration tool).

Christian Dögl's current main focus is on developing strategies and concepts for knowledge transfer in the areas of science, culture, technology and architecture.
